

for Doctors of Chiropractic with Ethics Issues

Chiropractic regulatory boards are often confronted with cases where it is in the public interest for a licensee to refresh and/or demonstrate knowledge about issues relating to fraud, sexual boundaries, moral turpitude, medical ethics, etc.

The FCLB is pleased to present this working list of resources. It will be updated and modified from time to time as more information becomes available.

Cevantive University

CE offered through Western States Chiropractic
College, a PACE Recognized Provider

There are two types of on-line courses:

- Remediation Courses: three different online courses that are specifically designed to be assigned by regulatory boards. A doctor can be ordered to take just one, two, or all three courses:

Fraud
Sex
Moral Turpitude

Each course is currently listed for $350 and is divided into three chapters. There is an assessment at the end which demonstrates whether the person comprehends the salient points. Actual time online is also tracked and reported to the board - a person cannot take the assessment until he or she has spent at least 1 hour on a chapter.

The principle author of these courses is a past president of the California chiropractic licensing board.

- Other Courses: some of these qualify for CE credit, some do not

Topics such as Stroke and Manipulation, Trends in X-ray Utilization, Skeletal Imaging, Proper Examinations of the Eye, and Application of Heat and Cold by Chiropractic Assistants are available at no charge and do not qualify for CE credits.

Offered through the University of Bridgeport and Cleveland Chiropractic College

While most of these programs are oriented toward clinical practice, there are several courses that fall into the ethics area:

- 14 hours of Boundary Training
- 7 hours of Ethics for Professionals

There are also courses in Risk Management / Malpractice, as well as Documentation and Recordkeeping.

Two states (Maryland and Georgia) offer their jurisprudence exams through this format.

Programs cost between $20 - $25 per credit hour.

Ethics and Boundaries Examination

Once doctors have completed the necessary re-training and exposure to the information, a number of boards require that they document their understanding of the material by taking the National Board of Chiropractic Examiners' Ethics and Boundaries Examination.

This test is constructed by chiropractic licensing board members from a number of states, and adheres to the same exacting standards that the NBCE requires for its other tests. Visit www.nbce.org and click on "post licensure examination" - then choose "Ethics and Boundaries."

Both the Special Purposes Exam in Chiropractic (which tests clinical competence) and the Ethics and Boundaries Examination are administered six times each year at computerized testing centers nationwide.

The exam fee is $825. The E&B test plan, a list of reference texts, and the locations of Pearson Professional Centers throughout North America are all available on the NBCE web site.

On-site ethics intervention program (NJ and CO)

Professional / problem-based ethics - offered by CPEP, the Center for Personalized Education for Physicians (Denver-based, national leader in physician assessment and education programs).

According to their web site -

"Since 1992, the ProBE Program (Professional/Problem Based Ethics) has been a highly successful educational intervention in practical ethics for several hundred health care professionals from 44 states who have been under discipline by their licensing boards, hospital credentialing office, and other oversight agencies."

The intense, intervention-style weekend is offered four times a year at Rutgers University in New Jersey and twice a year in Denver, Colorado. There is a limit of 14 participants in light of the intense personal nature of the program. Tuition is $1200 per student.

A mini-version of the program is offered from time to time for licensing board members from the many (primarily health-care) professions that may require successful completion of this program in cases where ethics violations have been determined. This gives board members a taste of the program.

INTERVENTION

<http://www.affiliatedmonitors.com>

On-site, in person verification of compliance

Based in Massachusetts but operating throughout the US, Affiliated Monitors has recruited and trained over 100 professional monitors who are carefully hand-selected to have the highest professional ethics.

The sanctioned licensee pays the cost of having the monitor ensure compliance with the board's orders. The monitor generally visits the practice, reviews on-site records, and meets with the licensee.

According to their web site, the program is designed to:

- Correct the problem that prompted the disciplinary action
- Develop systems and procedures to prevent its recurrence

Monitors are impartial and report directly and solely to the board, so if they detect anything of concern (even issues that have not yet been raised) they inform the board.

Affiliated Monitors' target population is people who CAN be remediated - they often need a teacher or mentor to show them better ways of operating and to hold them accountable.

Fees vary according to the level of monitoring required. All costs are paid by the licensee.
